Sourcing Diagnostic

July 2006

DRAFT

Objectives of Today

- Share findings from sourcing diagnostic
- Discuss proposed recommendations to address current challenges

Executive Summary (I)

- The recruiting environment for top talent has become more challenging
 - Increased competition from competitors
 - Greater number of start-up opportunities
 - Talent pools are getting smaller and increasingly harder to find, particularly for women and under-represented minorities
- Passive sourcing will play an increasingly larger role in recruiting as we move forward as a company
 - Efficient and effective sourcing organization critical to acquire top talent in current market landscape
- Sourcing comprised of three primary activities
 - Identifying talent pools and what sourcing tools to use (“Where to look “)
 - Searching and identifying potential leads (“Look and Find”)
 - Qualifying leads and converting them into active applicants (“Contact and Cultivate”)
- Current sourcing model organized around verticals
 - Central sourcing support provided for diversity talent
- There are five common drivers of sourcing problems ...
 - Organization around vertical and geographic silos
 - High share of contract labor in workforce mix
 - Misaligned incentives
 - Deep understanding of unique business dynamics and requirement not widely shared among Staffing team
 - Weak connectivity between Sourcers and Recruiters and Hiring Managers
 - System capability gaps

Executive Summary (II)

- ... which create organizational and process inefficiencies in current sourcing practices
 - Duplication of effort on searches for positions with similar candidate profile
 - Limited business knowledge transferred to recruiting staff
 - Poor connectivity between key roles within Staffing
 - Limited sharing of qualified candidates across the organization
- Key drivers of sourcing problems fall into common themes
 - Organizational structure
 - Training
 - Process improvement
 - Metrics and measurement
 - Technology
- Proposed solutions attempt to close gaps existing in current organization and align with the common themes

It Will Be Challenging to Achieve Hiring Targets With Existing Recruiting Channels

Will Need to be Supplemented by Alternative Sources

Hiring gap can be closed in three ways

- Supplement with increased passive sourcing
- Cast wider recruiting net (e.g., expand beyond target schools for campus recruiting)
- Improve pass-through rates

...While Inbound Flow from Job Boards Appears to Be Slowing

Possible drivers of reduced on-line application flow

- Increased number of job opportunities in Bay area competing for similar skill sets
 - More start-up opportunities
- More aggressive recruiting by traditional competitors
 - Microsoft
 - EBay
 - Yahoo
- Candidates self-selecting out of process
 - Hesitant to enter process widely known for being extremely selective

Sourcing Comprised of Three Primary Activities

Requires Different Skill Sets and Areas of Focus

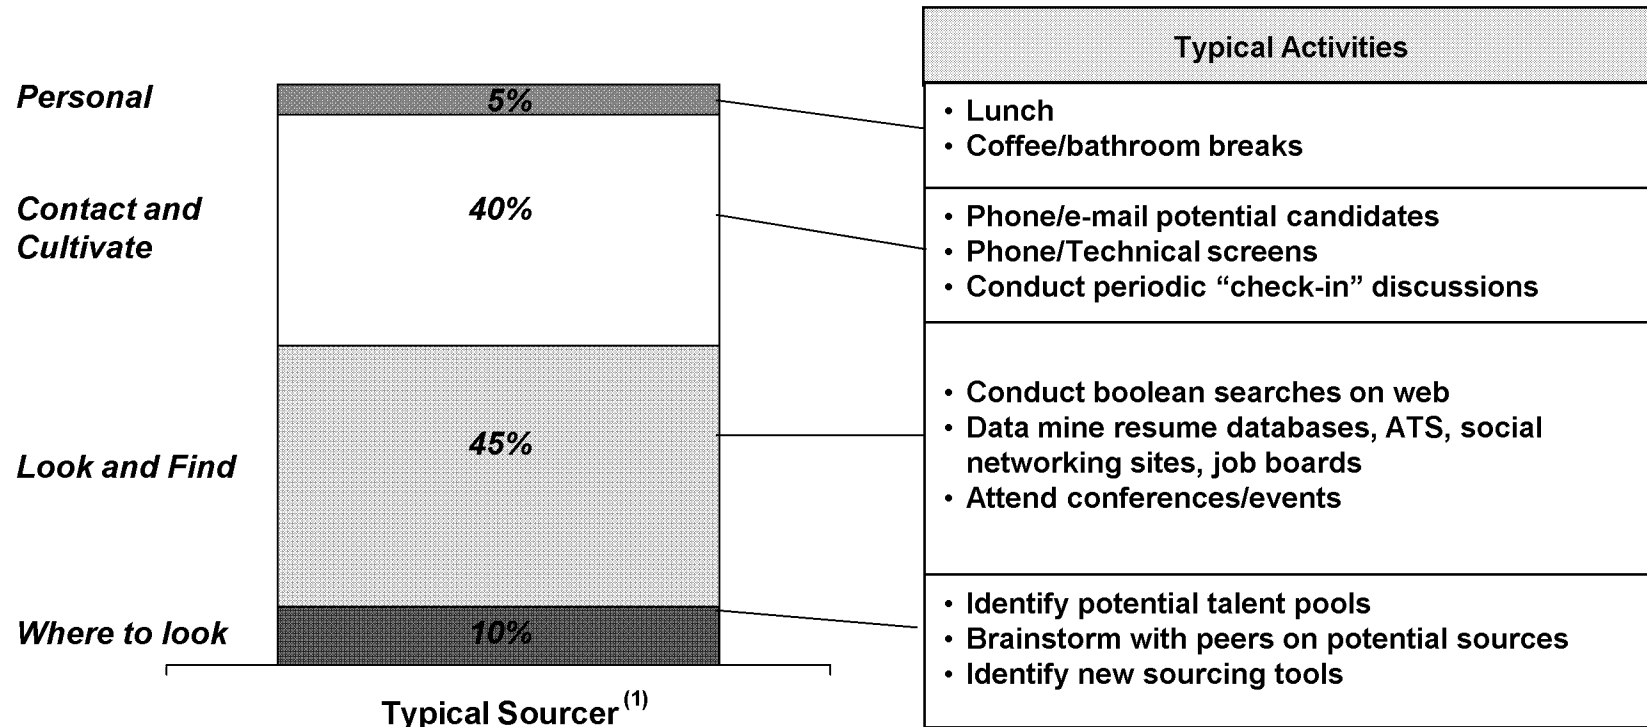

Current Sourcing Model Organized Around Verticals

Central Sourcing Support Provided for Diversity Talent

- However, current structure results in some process and organizational efficiencies
- Duplication of effort on searches for positions with similar candidate profile
 - Weak connectivity between vertical and geographic silos
 - Difficult to appropriately identify qualified candidates

Under Current Google Model, Average Sourcer Time Study is Misleading

% candidates sourced	9%
Offer rate %	5%

On average, sourcers spends approximately two days a week finding potential candidates and two days building relationships with candidates

- Less than a day spent identifying new talent pools

(1) Small sample size (n=20)

Note: 100% = Sourcer week

Source: Diary study surveying 110 sourcers across the Staffing organization

-Privileged and Confidential-

However, the Scope of a Sourcer's Responsibility Varies Significantly Across Verticals and Geography

Resulting in Varying Degrees of Effectiveness

% candidates sourced	X%	X%	X%	X%	X%	X%
Offer rate %	X%	X%	X%	X%	X%	X%

Data Miners

Candidate Developers

Currently no real consistency in Sourcers' role across the Staffing organization

- Sourcers in PSGA and EngOps tend to be more data miners
 - Limited interaction with candidates
 - Focused more on creating pipeline
- Majority of Sourcer time in EMEA, SRE, QA Diversity spent on developing long-term relationships with candidates and converting to applicants
 - Also allocate time to conducting front-end recruiting activities (e.g., pre-screen)
 - Higher leverage model

May be opportunity to create consistently greater leverage for Sourcers and Recruiters across the organization

Key Drivers of Sourcing Problems Fall into Common Themes

Proposed Recommendations Attempt to Close Gaps Existing in Current Organization

Proposed Organizational Structure Seeks to Resolve Challenges With Current Organization

Expect to Achieve a Number of Benefits

Expected Benefits

- More efficient knowledge and best practice sharing
- Avoid diluting focus of Sourcers and Candidate Developers
- Greater consistency around sourcing tool usage
- Enables better sharing of candidates for positions with similar profiles and competencies
- Matrixed reporting structure between Sourcers and vertical Candidate Developers helps maintain business connectivity
- Centralized pool enables greater fungibility of resources and supports dynamic resource allocation model
 - Better able to allocate resources to areas where most needed; dynamic not static

Next Steps

Estimated Timing

- Complete outstanding data analysis July 31

- Refine organizational and process recommendations July 31
 - More clearly articulate roles and responsibilities
 - Flesh out process flows

- Develop implementation and communication strategy Aug 9

- Continue moving forward with key tactical initiatives that will help move the needle in the short-term
 - Work with key Staffing stakeholders to develop and roll out Sourcer training by Sept Mid-Sept
 - Rationalize current suite of sourcing tools and develop governance model for tool evaluation go-forward Mid-Aug
 - Develop pilot university alumni program Mid-Sept

Five Key Staffing Roles

Scope of Responsibilities Varies Depending on Vertical

Scope of Responsibilities
Role	Sourcer <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Mine key data sources for potentially qualified passive candidates • Convert leads to applicants • Identify potentially qualified passive candidates and encourage them to attend Google events/conferences (Diversity only) • Pre-screen and qualify leads for specific technical skills (specific Verticals only) • Help shepherd diversity candidates through the application process (Diversity only)
	Candidate Developer (Diversity only) <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Cold-call identified candidates passed from Diversity sourcers to “sell” them Google and encourage them to apply on-line • Help shepherd diversity candidates through the application process
	Resume Screener <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Pre-screen Eng-Ops on-line applications and employee referrals to pre-qualify candidates prior to forwarding on to Recruiter
	Recruiting Coordinator <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Schedule phone-screen and on-site interviews • Manage administrative end of candidate recruiting process
	Recruiter <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Screen resumes in active queues (PSGA only) • Gather interview feedback • Prepare hiring committee and offer review packages • Act as primary liaison with candidate

No real consistency on how various roles are used

- In some areas, multiple roles are collapsed into single functions

...While Others Challenges are Unique

Diversity

- Diversity team-sourced candidates auto-rejecting in resume screen
 - May have slightly different background than typical Google candidate
 - Diversity team having to implement manual work arounds to “revive” candidates and actively engage recruiters
- Latency in recruiting process costing Google to lose talented diversity candidates
 - Diversity team-sourced candidates getting lost in enormous queues as there is currently no way to flag applicants
 - Unable to segregate and work within specific SLAs (similar to EE Referrals)
 - Due to smaller population, latency in process disproportionately negatively impacts diverse applicants than general population
 - Diversity team must individually follow up with lead recruiters as stop-gap
- Lack of clear leadership within Diversity team
 - Separation between Candidate Developers and Program Sourcers somewhat artificial
 - Image issues within broader Staffing team

International

- No sourcing capability resident in EMEA
 - Without global sourcing function may not be tapping into all valuable talent pools
- Mountain View-based international allocated resources not effective or tenable
 - EMEA-based staff never been informed of who specific resources in Mountain View are
 - Time zone differences constrain ability to contact candidates
 - Don't adequately understand focus of individual EMEA recruiters and therefore queue candidates incorrectly
- Overly reliant on costly agencies for pipeline creation
 - Accounts for ~33% of all hires
- High hiring bar coupled with the need to recruit for multiple languages creates increasingly challenging environment (support 25 languages)
- Best recruiting talent difficult to convert in EMEA
 - Tend not to have university degrees and therefore fail to meet standard Google bar
